GOVERNOR CUTLER'S OMISSIONS.

Governor Cutler's reception committee, so far, have been unique in the annals of public affairs, and the omission from the committee to meet the congressional delegation on irrigation are quite as unique as anything the governor has done since he took office. For instance, Senator Rawlins was one of the most effective members of the original senate committee which succeeded in meeting the demands of the country for an irrigation law which could pass the senate. His knowledge of irrigation law was particularly valuable to the senate, and his work in behalf of the measure won recognition at the time from every one familiar with the facts. Congressman W. H. King, in the lower house was a member of a similar committee, voted for the bill, helped secure its passage and is entitled to large credit. An ordinary governor would have regarded these two men as worthy to represent the state in receiving the irrigation delegates; most people would even think Senator Rawlins quite as representative a citizen on such an occasion as, say, Postmaster Clove of Provo, who was one of the conspicuous members of the appointed committee. To be sure, Senator Rawlins has not been active in behalf of Senator Smoot and Governor Cutler in their combination to control the state politically, nor has Congressman King been one of the most ardent supporters of that aggregation. But on an occasion like this, the ordinary man, even an ordinary governor, might be expected to forego some of his political prejudices and have two such men as King and Rawlins appear as hosts with him.

AN UNJUST INFERENCE.

The Times-Index of San Bernardino, California, says that San Bernardino's city fathers are not in favor of Salt Lake. It is expected they will immediately take up the matter of the erection of a bottle factory for that city. The evident intent of the article is to show a connection between the trip to Salt Lake and the agitation for a bottle factory in San Bernardino, but the Herald freely confesses its inability to grasp the point. Certainly, there was nothing in the conduct of the San Bernardino delegation while in Salt Lake that would justify a belief that they were gathering statistics on bottles. It may be stated as a matter of fact that ninety-five per cent of the places visited by the San Bernardino gentlemen were houses where bottles are almost unknown, the goods being kept on draught.

DIXIE'S ANNUAL FAIR.

A special appeal to the people of Washington county is contained in the premium list of the next Washington county fair, which will be held in St. George, Sept. 6, 7 and 8. The directors urge the people of the county to "plant something to exhibit. Show what our Dixie soil and climate can produce. Let no one feel too weak or insignificant to assist in this worthy object." The directors are exerting themselves to make the coming fair the most successful in the history of the county, and, with the co-operation of the people of the county, will be successful. There will be departments of agriculture, horticulture, floriculture, sericulture, live stock, bees, dairy and poultry, mines, women's work, education, curios, relics and art and a variety of amusements. In addition to a good list of cash prizes the directors offer prizes in the form of subscriptions of farm papers and magazines, with a view to placing in the hands of the people of the county a class of reading that would be of constant benefit to them. The officers of the association are: George F. Whitehead, president; David R. Forsha, secretary; A. E. Andrus, corresponding secretary; James McArthur, James L. Bunting, Samuel Judd, Joseph T. Atkin, directors.

NEW YORK'S BUSINESS BRAINS.

Paul Morton's selection as president of the Equitable has led shrewd observers to remark anew upon the fact that the men who conduct the great business enterprises of the country are New Yorkers, despite the New York tendency to view with a lofty disdain the other sections of the country. Jay Gould, Pierpont Morgan, William C. Whitney, Oliver Payne, R. T. Wilson, John Inman, Victor Newcomb, J. J. Hill, C. P. Huntington, Andrew Carnegie, H. C. Frick, C. M. Schwab, John W. Gates and dozens of others who have been conspicuous financial figures during the last twenty years gained their business training elsewhere and were none of them natives of New York. Most of them, it is true, made that city their base of operations, but they did this for the sake of convenience and owed none of their skill or success to New York. New York has long been accustomed to import its business brains from other sections of the country, the case of the Equitable being the latest important instance. Morton is a western man and Ryan is a southerner. It is not to be expected that this circumstance, or any circumstance likely to exist, will detract in the least from the high opinion the New Yorker holds of himself as compared with the rest of the country, but his attitude has come to be well understood by the country at large and no longer provokes anything but amusement.

ROOSEVELT'S RUSSIAN CRITICS.

President Roosevelt no doubt appreciated the troubles that attend a peace-maker and will not, therefore, be surprised to learn that in certain circles of Russia there was open exultation over the prospect that Washington would not be accepted as the place for negotiations, the prospect being interpreted as a "rebuff to Roosevelt." The definite acceptance of Washington as the place has effectively settled the fate of the alleged "rebuff," but it will scarcely appease the disgruntled Russians who are devoting their time these days to a search for persons upon whom they may vent their spleen. The president, who has become the conspicuous figure in the preliminary negotiations, is a natural mark for them, but he is certainly big enough to smile at the misdirected venom of the creatures who attack the man and the nation that merely seek to restore peace and to save Russia from further humiliation.

PEOPLES THE WEST.

A direct addition of 12,500,000 to the population of the country as a result of the reclamation of arid lands of the west is predicted by Rufus Rockwell Wilson in an article on "The Conquest of the Arid West" in Public Opinion. He says: "There are in the west 100,000,000 acres of arid land which experts declare can be reclaimed by irrigation. When that is done the reclaimed lands will add nearly one-fourth to the actual crop-producing area of the country, and will exceed by a liberal margin the tillable land of all the states on the Atlantic coast. Cut up into forty-acre plots, the average size of irrigated farms, this area will make 2,500,000 farms. The occupants of these farms will add directly to the population 12,500,000 and indirectly at least 3,500,000 more, an increase of nearly one-fourth in the population of the country. These figures have been cited because in no other way can be so clearly shown the promise bound up in the reclamation act passed in 1902 by congress—a clear and explicit measure which provides that the money derived from the sale of public lands shall be devoted to the erection of dams, reservoirs, and canals to be used for the irrigation of the arid lands and districts of the west."

Something new in the way of a graft has developed in New York. In a short time the city will muster out a number of volunteer fire companies in Staten Island and Queens to permit the extension of the paid department. Under the law, all veteran volunteer firemen are entitled to the privileges and exemptions of war veterans, which makes it impossible to remove city employees except for misconduct. Naturally, then, a veteran fireman in the employ of the city can view with impunity political changes in the city government so long as he does not lay himself open to charges that can be proved. Hundreds of men are now joining the companies soon to be mustered out, and the graft possibilities of the situation have not been overlooked. Those who control the admission of members to the companies have formed a syndicate and are assessing applicants from $25 to $100 for admission, but the applicants generally do not complain, taking the view that it is cheap enough for the insurance against removal from their jobs.

If the government persists in its policy of examining corporations' books it is easy to believe that leading educational institutions will soon drop their bookkeeping courses in favor of memory training.

The French chamber of deputies has consumed two months in debating the question of church and state, which makes that issue almost as important as our own franchise question.

Still, we are led to believe, the committee would have received more vivid impressions of Utah's irrigation possibilities if its visit had been coincident with that of the Angelenos.

If jiu jitsu is responsible for the treatment given that sewing machine agent at Bingham it will be idle to argue that the Japanese science is a gentleman's pastime.

Having discovered gold bricks on the local diamond this year ourselves, we refuse to be astonished by the statement that gold ore was found during a game at Bullfrog.

Now that Emperor William has taken for a text "The Lord of Hosts is With Us," it begins to look as if Captain Coghlan knew what he was talking about after all.

General Linevitch reports the receipt of reports that the Japanese troops are shy on ammunition and food. Don't you believe what they tell you, general.

The firecracker, already much in evidence, shows that the small boy can not wait until the Fourth for his annual hospital experience.

There is, however, no reason to doubt that our friend William would like the open door in Morocco to face toward Germany.

As yet Salt Lake City has not asked for the peace conference. What asks our Commercial club, anyway?

Little Talk Helped.

One Kind of Society.

(Buffalo Enquirer.)
Mrs. George E. Heaton of East Oakland, who was her husband's co-laborer in the building of the Heaton airship, said the other day:
"I like to have a multitude of good friends, and I like to see many friends. Society, however, as the term is generally understood, I object to. I object strongly to intercourse with people whom I don't admire, who only try to outdo me in extravagance, and display, and who only try to snub each other."

other, I would much rather give my time to work.
"Society," continued Mrs. Heaton, "is epitomized in an incident that occurred at a party.
"A millionaire's wife sat in her dressing room with a friend when the cards of two other millionaires' wives were brought to her. She tore the cards in little pieces.
"Tell these ladies," she said, haughtily, "that I am not at home."
The maid withdrew with the message, and a little later, on some other errand, returned to the room again.
"Jane," said her mistress, "did you tell those ladies I was not at home?"
"Yes, mum," Jane answered.
"What did they say?"
"They said: 'Forfeit!'"

FROM HEAD TO FOOT
You feel the good that's done by Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It cleanses, regulates and invigorates the blood. And through the blood, it cleanses, repairs, and invigorates the whole system. In recent years, the discovery has been used to build up needed flesh and strength. It rouses every organ into natural action, promotes all the bodily functions, and restores health and vigor.

For every disease that comes from foul or weak stomach, a torpid liver or impure blood, dyspepsia, indigestion, biliousness, and the most stubborn skin, scalp, or scrofulous affections, the "Discovery" is a sovereign remedy. Don't be hypnotized, wheedled, or over-persuaded into accepting a substitute only that some selfish medicine seller may make a greater profit on the inferior article. The "Discovery" has a great record of nearly forty years with thousands of cures behind it.

Dear Sir—Several years ago my blood became impoverished and I became run down in health. I had no appetite, could not sleep, and was practically unfitted for work. Suffered from innumerable boils and was in bad shape. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery relieved me of my wretched condition. The medicine built up my system, and I am now a normal condition of health. I can speak most highly also of Dr. Pierce's Female Prescriptions, as it has been used in my family for years in cases of female trouble.
